THE GRAND.

"A Girl Spy in Mexico," a Lubin two-reel feature, will be the headliner at the Grand tonight. War is on between the Insurrectos and Federal troops in Old Mexico, and the intermittent firing is playing havoc. The Senorita Armaje, not hearing of her lover, Lieut. Blanco, goes to the insurgent camp, and to assist her cause, poses as a Red Cross nurse and enters the federal camp as a spy. She is discovered and arrested. Blanco effects his sweetheart's escape. Col. Ferro recaptures them. Blanco and the Senorita are marched onward to what end—we know not.

A laughable Kalem comedy, "The Bravest Girl in California," featuring Ruth Roland and John Brennan, on the same reel with "The Millionaire's Playground," showing Palm Beach in the winter season, will be shown at the Grand tonight.

THE ARKWAY.

Tonight the management of the Arkway offers a big feature drama full of elaborate scenic effects, produced by the Warner Feature Film Company, entitled "The Fatal Mask." The utter emptiness of the whims and follies of those deluded people who play as the moths around the gilded flames of so-called society diversions only to wake inevitable to the despairing realization of a mis-spent career. A lesson well worth learning is taught in this feature picture. In the "Tempter of Souls," another feature picture to be shown at the Arkway tonight, can be traced the undercurrent of subtle immorality and the evil influence of Pluto, throughout the whole plot.

MASONIC LODGE TONIGHT.

The Masonic lodge will meet tonight in their hall on North Front street. The Master's degree will be conferred upon candidates.

SANITARY INDIVIDUAL DRINKING CUPS

The State Board of Health, acting under a new law, has issued orders prohibiting the use of common drinking cups in stores, offices, hotels, schools or any place except private homes. The penalty for violations of this order is a fine of from $10 to $100, and county and city health officers are instructed to see that it is enforced.

We are prepared to furnish Sanitary Individual Drinking Cups, made of a special and sterilized paper. With your card printed on them, they will prove a valuable advertising medium.

They cost no more than ordinary dodgers—so cheap that no business man can afford to do without them.

Call or phone and we will be glad to show them to you.

GRAND JURY FILES ITS FINAL REPORT

RETURNS 15 INDICTMENTS

RECOMMENDS ELECTION BALLOTS BE PRESERVED AT LEAST SIX MONTHS.

Returning four additional indictments, making a total of 15 for the term, the Faulkner county grand jury filed its final report and adjourned this morning. One of the indictments was for a felony.

The report in full is as follows:
To, the Honorable Eugene Lankford, Judge of the Seventeenth Judicial District:

We, the grand jury impaneled to serve at the July term of the Faulkner circuit court, beg to submit the following report, to-wit:

We have examined 92 duly subpoenaed witnesses and have had seven voluntary statements. We have returned 15 true bills and have dismissed seven cases that have been brought to our notice, several of which were referred to this grand jury from the January term of this court.

COUNTY JAIL.

The grand jury in a body visited the county jail and found that it is in a good condition, with the exception of the toilet room. We would recommend that this be looked into immediately, and that the toilet room be placed in a sanitary condition.

COUNTY POOR FARM.

The committee appointed to visit and examine the poor farm found that it is in a reasonably good condition, but we recommend that they have a little more ventilation in the buildings.

PUBLIC ROADS.

We find that some of the public roads have been neglected, and we recommend that some of the overseers look after their roads more closely during the summer months so they will be passable in the fall and winter. We wish to call the county judge's attention to some of the overseers who fail to work the roads or fill in the large holes during the winter and spring months.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

The committee appointed to investigate the accounts of the county officers find that all the county officers have made their reports; that the justices of the peace have filed their reports with the county clerk and that the constables have paid over the money as the law requires. We get this information from the commissioners of accounts who we believe have made a thorough investigation, after taking this matter up with them.

IN THE MATTER OF ELECTION FRAUD.

We have made a thorough investigation of the rumors of the election fraud and find that it was the custom of the canvassing committee to destroy the poll book and ballots after the vote had been canvassed, and on that account we were unable to proceed further. We recommend that the ballots be preserved for a period of at least six months.

We wish to thank the court, the prosecuting attorney and the county officers for the courtesies and assistance during our short session here.

MORRILTON NEGRO DIES ON GALLOWS

Morrilton, July 29.—At 2:04 o'clock yesterday afternoon Sheriff J. W. Gordon of Conway county pulled the trigger that sent to his death the negro Alvin Hudson, alias "Boss" Gaylord, condemned murderer of Herb Williams, a white rural mail carrier. Twenty-three and a half minutes later the physicians declared life extinct, due to strangulation, his neck being unbroken.

While on the scaffold no mention whatever was made of his crime nor did he at any time profess sorrow for the same. When he had finished speaking he stepped firmly to the middle of the trap and stood there without the quiver of a single muscle while his colored minister commended his soul to the keeping of his God, and after the prayer Gaylord joined in with a strong voice in singing two verses of a hymn.

The straps were then adjusted by Deputies Hall Morrill, J. G. Earl, Lander Gordon and Brit Jones, the black cap pulled down, the noose adjusted and his body shot through the trap.

Mrs. Herb Williams, widow of the murdered man, together with her two grown daughters and young son, witnessed the execution of Gaylord. They showed no excitement whatever, the mother sitting in a chair just below the scaffold and the children looking on from a window just above. When the negro's body shot through the trap and hung from the end of the rope with convulsive shudders running through his frame, the mother looked at the children and a smile wreathed her face.

The crime for which Gaylord paid the extreme penalty was committed on November 16, 1912, when he waylaid Herb Williams and crushed his skull with a single-barrel shotgun as the latter was making his regular round delivering mail. Gaylord robbed Williams of $10, but overlooked $125 in the mail bag, which Williams had just collected from the sale of a piece of property.

CAPT. BEAVERS UP IN ARMS

Little Rock, July 29.—Capt. J. J. Beavers of the "blue sky" department of the state auditor's office, is up in arms against the actions of the Cotton States Investment Company. This company filed a petition to be granted a permit to do business in Arkansas. Asked for its business, the company stated:

"We are not selling stock of the Cotton States Investment Company, but are acting as fiscal agents to sell capital stock and participating certificates of the Southern States Cotton Corporation."

Representatives of the company, which is a Texas concern, appeared before Deputy Beavers, and they were informed that as the sole business of the company appeared to be the selling of stock in the Southern States

Cotton Corporation, it necessarily followed that a statement of the affairs of the corporation whose stock was to be sold, should be supplied to the department.

After letters had been written to the company, also giving this information, a letter was received asking that the application for a permit to do business in Arkansas be withdrawn. Auditor Coffman took a hand and stated that as the petition was a matter of record, it could not be withdrawn.

Now a circular has been received in the office of the state auditor, purporting to have been issued by the Southern States Cotton Corporation, in which it states a state permit has been issued to it. This makes the officials wrathful under the collar, and they emphatically deny such a state of affairs, and until a corporation has been able to stand the test of the "blue sky law," people of the state are expected to beware of selling agents who make them tempting offers to get rich quick in the purchase of its stock.
